Rhino’s Massive Use Hearing Protection: Factory Records 1978-79 Box Set – Worth It?

Molochi Lui | Jul 22, 2020 | 10 comments

A lawsuit. A specific club night. Films that you’ll never see. A stray cat. Extremely rare posters and promo items that probably ended up in landfill. An unrealized menstrual abacus egg timer. Several buildings.

Mentioned above are Factory Communications catalog items that frustrate completists; they’re unobtainable. Sure, you can get pieces of the buildings, or a picture of the cat, or track down people with (drug-influenced) memories of the party. But if you weren’t there, you really weren’t there and can’t go back. Only remnants of the Manchester label’s catalog oddities remain.

Apollo Orb 43” Umbrella Softbox Sweepstakes

Shutterbug Staff | Apr 10, 2017 | 6 comments

Register to win an Apollo Orb 43” Umbrella Softbox ($129.00 Retail Value) we are giving away.

According to the company:

“The 43” Apollo Orb was designed with a deep profile. This design gives your light the room to evenly disperse as it is projected toward your subject. The Apollo Orb’s circular design simulates the appearance of the sun in your subject’s eyes, allowing for pristine portraiture without distracting reflections. With flexible framework and instant umbrella-style setup, these modifiers are designed for busy photographers. Each Apollo and Halo softbox packs up quickly and can be thrown into any gear bag for effortless travel and storage.”
